If this is all you know about OSU, you have a lot to learn.

The Ohio State University points with pride to our Buckeye traditions, and to having the nation's largest enrollment of any educational institution on one campus. But as a community of learning, OSU's academic reputation stretches far beyond the Buckeye State. In the classroom and in the research laboratory, Ohio State "Buckeyes" have earned national recognition.

Here are a few of the reasons for our nationwide reputation:

The 65 National Merit Scholars in this year's freshman class place OSU among the highest in the USA. The University also has four National Achievement Scholars and about 400 Freshman Scholars in the class of 1979.

OSU's College of Optometry ranks first in academic excellence among the nation's optometry schools, according to a poll of deans conducted by "Change" magazine. Ranked third in the nation are the College of Pharmacy and the College of Education, while the College of Veterinary Medicine is fourth.

The College of Dentistry enrolled the largest entering class in the country, 200 in July 1975. The College of Veterinary Medicine has the largest enrollment in North America—510 veterinary students—and has graduated more veterinarians than any other school, 3,815 as of August 1975.

Our Institute of Polar Studies is the only one in the USA to study both the North and South Poles in a wide range of disciplines—botany, climatology, geophysics, and glaciology. It sent the world's first all-woman scientific team to Antarctica in 1969.

The Disaster Research Center is unique in the world—performing sociological research on the reactions of groups and organizations in community-wide emergencies, particularly natural disasters.

Thus, while OSU's Buckeye tree has its roots in Ohio, its branches cover the nation for these and many other reasons. If you are interested in more information on OSU today or on any of our graduate and undergraduate programs, contact: Office of Public Affairs, 190 North Oval Mall, The Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio 43210.

IN THE HUDDLE

By Steve Snapp

Comparisons inevitably arise in athletics. Given the highly competitive nature of sports, it is only natural to draw parallels between present day athletes and teams and those of years past.

So it comes as no surprise, that Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes has been frequently asked to compare this year's offensive backfield of Archie Griffin, Cornelius Greene, Brian Baschnagel and Pete Johnson to others he has coached during his quarter of a century with the Buckeyes. It's a comparison he declines to make, at least for the moment.

"I can't compare this backfield with others because we still have at least four games to play," said Hayes, whose Buckeyes currently are 7-0 and hold the top spot in both wire service polls. "You have to evaluate a team or a part of that team by what it does over the course of an entire season, not just seven weeks."

Woody will admit, however, that this year's backfield is the most versatile he has ever had.

"I don't think there is any question about that," he says. "This backfield can do more things than any I have ever coached. That is more and more obvious each week. Any one of our four starters can go all the way on any play. That makes our offense amazingly diversified and difficult to defend."

After last week, Purdue Coach Alex Agase would agree.

"Ohio State's offense is impossible to stop," Agase said following a 35-6 loss to the Buckeyes. "They just have too many weapons. You may shut off one, but when you do someone else hurts you."

Last week's contest was not unlike the previous six games that OSU has played this year. Teams that gear their defenses to stopping Greene and Griffin from running outside, soon have to contend with Johnson blasting up the middle or Baschnagel on one of his patented reverses. And defensive coaches are learning that Greene is a surprisingly accurate passer with a very capable corps of receivers.

Griffin, of course, has rewritten the OSU, Big Ten and NCAA record books. There just aren't many records left for the remarkable little tailback to set as he bids to become the first player in college football history to win a second Heisman trophy.

Greene and Johnson also are in the record book. Greene, who set a single season total offense record last year for the Buckeyes with 1,781 yards, is a solid third in career total offense behind Archie and Rex Kern respectively. The senior quarterback will undoubtedly go around the latter before the season ends. He also stands fourth in career passing with 1,909 yards. Pretty good for a running quarterback.

Johnson rushed for five touchdowns against North Carolina this year to set a one-game OSU record, and with 18 touchdowns so far this season, the 240-pound fullback needs to cross the goal line just three more times to eclipse the Buckeye and Big Ten single season record of 20. Big Pete now has 31 career touchdowns.

Baschnagel doesn't figure in the record books, unless you look between the lines. His blocking and clutch running and receiving have been instrumental in the success of the others. He is the complete team player and no less valuable than the other three members of this talented foursome that will lead the Buckeyes against Indiana today.

Buck of the Week

BOB BRUDZINSKI—DEFENSIVE END—Had the finest game of his career last week at Purdue, making nine solo tackles and five assists for 14 total participations. Also had a minus-yardage tackle and was generally responsible for shutting off the Boilermakers outside game. Now has 38 tackles on the year to rank seventh on the Buckeye defense. Third in tackles behind the line of scrimmage with seven. Graded out to a solid 87 percent against Purdue, earning three and one half Buckeye Leaves.

Back of the Week

ARCHIE GRIFFIN—TAILBACK—Rambled for 130 yards last week at Purdue to become the all-time leading rusher in major college football history with 4,730 career yards. Now has gone over the 100-yard rushing mark in 28 consecutive regular-season games and has 910 yards this season. Needs 90 yards to surpass the 1,000 yard mark for the third straight year. He is the only Ohio State player ever to top 1,000 yards more than once in his career.

BUCKEYE FRESHMEN FIT MOLD

Current NCAA legislation limits member institutions to no more than 30 football recruits in a given year. Some college coaches consider that restriction too severe, but not Woody Hayes.

Since Hayes began coaching at Ohio State in 1951, the Buckeyes have rarely ever taken the allowable maximum. The last time it happened was in 1967 when Rex Kern, John Brockington, Jack Tatum and Jim Stillwagon, just to name a few, made up the nucleus of what may have been the best freshman class ever at Ohio State.

But not giving out thirty grants-in-aids every year hasn't hurt the Buckeye cause. Twenty-two of Hayes' 24 OSU teams have produced winning records and the last three have made Rose Bowl appearances.

"We are after quality not quantity when we recruit," explains Hayes. "We don't go after numbers, we try to get players who will fit into our system and be able to make a contribution to our team."

The 1975 frosh class looks like it can do just that. Twenty-four in number, the current crop of yearlings is big, strong and aggressive. That was obvious from the first day of fall practice. And after the youngsters had had an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the OSU system, their talent was equally apparent.

"They're a good group okay and I am sure a number of them will help us this year," said Hayes, who does not hesitate to play freshmen once he deems them ready for the rigors of college football.

Twenty of the newcomers are linemen and linebackers. Graduation depleted the Buckeyes in those two areas last year, so the coaching staff spent the winter and spring looking for players to fill the gap.

The search paid off handsomely. Eight of the new group were first-team prep All-Americans. Nine others were first team all-state picks.

A Fighting Methodist by Any Other Name?

by LARRY GUEST, Orlando (Fla.) Sentinel Star

The very heavy thinkers in the University of Southern Mississippi Alumni Association gathered over doughnuts one day back in the early '60s and decided the nickname for the school's athletic teams was outdated.

The seed was planted in the minds of a few student leaders and before long, it was duly decreed that Southern's practitioners of sport would be known as Generals; no longer as Southerners. Perhaps the latter tag seemed somewhat incongruous when applied to the school's outstanding basketball team of that era. For when the pep band completed the National Anthem and broke into a spirited rendition of Dixie, the five starting Southerners who took the floor would have been hard-pressed to distinguish between hominy grits and collards. They hailed from the Bronx, Brooklyn, New Jersey, Illinois and Indiana.

However, as has been the case with so many other nickname changes, the new monicker didn't stick. In less than a year, Generals no longer appeared in official references to the squads, marking a decisive victory for those supporters who continued to cheer the Southerners ingrained in their loyalties.

Subsequently, as confirmation of the Civil War outcome seeped down from Appomattox, the heavy thinkers renewed their effort to rid USM of its provincialistic nickname. And just a decade after the first misfire, Golden Eagles was successfully adopted via a nickname contest.

Nickname changes—or aborted attempts—are liberally sprinkled throughout the history of collegiate athletics. A fight song provided Tulane with the Green Wave, replacing Greenbacks, a handle that might have red-faced the school's athletic business manager during the attendance slump of the mid-sixties when the average number of paying customers at Tulane home games dipped to a budget-pinching 14,000.

Many, many seasons have come and gone since Cornhuskers replaced Bugeaters at Nebraska—for reasons which should be painfully apparent. Although the many recent victims of Alabama football teams may find it hard to believe, the Crimson Tide was once the Thin Red Line.

And, while in the crimson area, a student attempt to change Indiana's Hoosiers to the Crimson Bulls fortunately never got off the ground. Same for an aborted try to have the Purdue Boilermakers become the Riveters. Riveters?

Oh, well. That wouldn't have been much more unusual than the current St. Louis University Billikins. Don't feel culturally deprived if your neighborhood zoo fails to contain a herd of billikins. It's actually a Chinese God who was supposed to bring good luck. The mascot is a god much like Hoy-Tay—squat, fat little guy with a big belly—giving your humble reporter hope for new employment if I ever leave the newspaper business.

Another newspaperman, Wallace Abbey, is generally credited with applying the Wildcat tag to Northwestern much to the relief of peace-loving clergymen. The school's football team had previously molested opponents under guise of being Fighting Methodists.

Ask a grad of Western Carolina or Vermont what a Catamount is and watch him stutter. They've cheered for Catamounts since their freshman year probably unaware that it's actually a general name given to any of various wild cats, and short for cat-a-mountain.

Many schools took the easy route by merely embracing their state's accepted mascot or nickname, i.e., Tennessee Vols, Illinois Illini, Indiana Hoosiers, Minnesota Gophers, etc.

No bickering between alumni and students. No nickname contests. Think of the fun they missed.

Others were more original . . . California Irvine Anteaters, Colby College White Mules, and the Tufts Jumbos to name a few.

OSU FOOTBALL COACHES

"Whenever you lose a good assistant coach, you must replace him with an assistant who is just as good," WOODY HAYES

Coach Woody Hayes has exercised the above philosophy throughout his coaching career. He believes that the nine assistants who now make up the Buckeye coaching staff are among the finest in college football and one of the chief reasons that Ohio State has enjoyed such success over the years.

Let's meet them:

RALPH STAUB coaches the offensive ends and tackles and is the recruiting coordinator for the Buckeyes. A 1952 graduate of Cincinnati, Ralph joined the OSU staff in 1970.

GEORGE CHAUMP works with the quarterbacks and wide receivers. He has one of the keenest football minds on the staff and has been an offensive innovator since joining the staff in 1968.

MICKEY JACKSON is in his second year with the Buckeyes. A 1968 graduate of Marshall, he joined the OSU ranks last year as offensive back-field coach.

ALEX GIBBS is the newest member of the Ohio State staff, having joined the Buckeyes last March as offensive guard and center coach. Alex, a graduate of Davidson College, was an assistant at West Virginia before coming to OSU.

GEORGE HILL has been defensive coordinator at Ohio State since he joined the Buckeye staff in 1971. In addition to overseeing the defense, Hill also coaches the linebackers. Under Hill, the OSU defense has become one of the best in the country.

ESCO SARKKINEN is the veteran of the Ohio State staff. The Buckeyes' defensive end coach, Sark joined the Buckeyes in 1946 as end coach for Paul Bixler. Sark is a 1939 OSU grad, earning All-American football honors as a senior.

RICHARD WALKER coaches the defensive back-field for the Buckeyes. He has been at Ohio State since 1969 and is responsible for recruiting in the Cleveland area.

CHUCK CLAUSEN joined the OSU staff in 1971 as defensive tackle coach. A graduate of New Mexico, he is responsible for recruiting along the eastern seaboard.

JOHN MUMMEY serves as varsity reserve and weight coach for the Buckeyes. He joined the staff in 1969 as freshman coach after a two year stay as head coach at Painesville Harvey High.

OSU health sciences . . .

Making a better life for Ohioans

Combatting sickle cell anemia, developing more effective means of birth control, identifying new causes of tooth decay — only three among many important inroads Ohio State University's five health sciences colleges and two schools are making toward better health and life.

Health sciences here are as varied as their $7.5 million research program. Building from the colleges of pharmacy and veterinary medicine, founded in 1895, health sciences moved in 1914 into medicine, nursing, dentistry and optometry and added the School of Allied Medical Professions in 1966.

Medicine

The College of Medicine is the sixth largest medical school in the country. Each year 227 students enter the three-year program which includes instruction in 18 departments ranging from anatomy to surgery. In addition to clinical training in Ohio State's seven-hospital medical complex, students work with a variety of patients outside the university through the college's community medicine program.

Dentistry

The College of Dentistry has the largest entering class in the nation with 200 students beginning the three-year program in 1975. In addition to their training in the college's dental clinic, students have the opportunity to work outside the university. Offered on an elective basis, students in the program travel to Appalachia twice a month. Students learn to identify dental problems inherent to a specific location, to teach proper dental care, and to become familiar with the demands of a dental practice in a small town.

Optometry

The College of Optometry became one of the university's five graduate professional colleges in 1968. The following year the college inaugurated an inner-city clinic to help meet the special needs of the underprivileged. "We've always had a quality program with high academic standards, an exceptional faculty and well qualified students," Dean Frederick W. Hebbard commented.

Pharmacy

Students in the College of Pharmacy receive instruction in a wide range of pharmacy-related interests and are encouraged to work within the community. This community concern is reflected in a special program in which pharmacy students travel to Columbus area schools providing information on the effects of drug use to primary and secondary students.

Veterinary Medicine

The College of Veterinary Medicine has graduated more veterinarians than any other U.S. college, with more than 50 percent becoming general practitioners. A comprehensive four-year instructional program in comparative medical science prepares students for careers in private practice, animal disease control, public health and research. Its investigation of infectious disease, cancer, eye and heart disease, surgical techniques, orthopedic devices, drugs and vaccines and basic medical concepts is in cooperation with Ohio State's other health-related colleges.

Allied Medicine

The School of Allied Medical Professions was established as part of a move to centralize the university's educational programs in health related professions. Ohio State pioneered many of these programs and was the first university in the country to offer a degree program in medical dietetics and circulation technology.

The school is comprised of twelve divisions covering the spectrum of medical support services. Degree and certificate programs include circulation technology, hospital and health services administration, medical communications, medical dietetics, medical illustration, medical record administration, medical technology, nurse anesthesiology, occupational therapy, physical therapy, radiologic technology and respiratory technology.

Nursing

The School of Nursing reflects the changing role of professional nurses in its curriculum. The school offers programs designed to meet the needs of specific areas of nursing in addition to its regular curriculum. One such program is specialized preparation in cancer nursing. In addition to care of the patient, emphasis is placed on nursing measures in the prevention and early detection of cancer as well as gains being made in the control of malignancies.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY

Student Building

One of the oldest state universities west of the Alleghenies, Indiana University is a pioneer in the program of higher education in the Midwest. It was founded in 1820 as Indiana State Seminary, designated Indiana College by the General Assembly in 1828 and became Indiana University in 1838. It is chartered by the Assembly as "The University of the State" and, as such, is head of the public school system of Indiana.

Indiana University has grown from this beginning to a Bloomington campus of 1,850 wooded acres and a 1975 total of 29,467 full-time undergraduate students, plus an additional 39,000 at the Indianapolis and regional campuses.

There are three major divisions within the University: 1. Indiana University at Bloomington; 2. Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis; 3. Regional campuses at South Bend, Fort Wayne, Northwest (East Chicago-Gary), Kokomo, Southeast (Jeffersonville-New Albany) and East (Richmond).

The University offers degrees in more than 60 fields through the College of Arts and Sciences; Graduate School; The Normal College of American Gymnastic Union; Schools of Business, Dentistry, Education, Health-Physical Education-Recreation, Law, Medicine, Music, Nursing and the Herron School of Art; and Divisions of University Extensions, Social Service, General and Technical Studies, Optometry, Biological Sciences, Allied Health Sciences, Personnel and the University Division.

Residence halls at Bloomington provide living quarters for over 12,000 single students. Married students have access to over 2,000 apartments and trailers. Additional housing is provided in 18 sororities and 33 fraternities.

Indiana has more than 200,000 living alumni of whom more than half hold degrees. So many alumni — more than 144 — have headed institutions of higher learning the University is known as "Mother of College Presidents."

The University has been a pioneer in many fields: Among the first state universities (1867) to admit women as students on an equal basis with men; among the first to introduce the elective course of study system (1887) and military training (1840).

The library system contains more than 4,500,000 items. Comprising the University library system are the main library; the Lilly Library; libraries of the regional campuses; school libraries; and collections at housing units in the Halls of Residence system.

Widely known for its research activities in many fields, Indiana is a center for graduate studies. Four graduate programs — Russian, French, Botany and German — rank among the top ten in the nation while 27 other graduate programs have been given national ranking. Its Department of English is ranked among the top half-dozen in the country and the School of Medicine has the largest enrollment in the U.S.

Hoosier Receiver Catches, Learns from Football

Trent Smock leaned back from his seat in Assembly Hall. "What I've learned from football?" Yes . . . what has Trent Smock learned from football? The minor variances of the down-and-out? How to beat the rotating zone? Downfield blocking technique?

"Well," he said softly, leaning forward in concentration, "I've really learned a lot about people."

Six and a half feet tall, Trent Smock was an All-America in football and All-State in basketball at Richmond High School. Recruited heavily in both sports, he chose Indiana to play both, and played as a top reserve on the Hoosier basketball varsity as a freshman and sophomore.

Smock was a second string wide receiver his freshman year, catching one pass. As a tight end the next year, he was second team All-Big Ten, leading the Hoosiers with 36 receptions and five TD's. Last year Smock returned to the wide position, and again led IU pass receivers, catching 31 passes with seven touchdowns.

He set an IU single-game receiving record at Kentucky, totaling 178 yards in eight catches, including a 90 yard touchdown throw from Bob Kramer. His six catches for 129 yards and two scores were instrumental in the 34-3 victory over Minnesota.

He is a top All-Big Ten and All-America candidate this year, and wishes to play professional football, and has an excellent chance of being a top draft pick. He's obviously a talented natural athlete.

But not all natural athletes have excelled the way Trent Smock has. Why his excellence? Look to his learning about people.

Foremost has been what Smock learned from the late Howard Brown. "I really learned to appreciate people from Coach Brown," he said quietly. "A lot of people talk to each other every day and take each other for granted . . . they never tell you how much they appreciate you, or thank you for something. Then, when you're gone, it's too late.

"I was a lot closer to Coach Brown than a lot of players were, and I'm thankful that before he died he knew how much I liked him, how I admired and appreciated him . . . to acknowledge and recognize people: that's something I've learned."

Smock's appreciation of people carries to the field in the form of being "the least important person out there." "Really, athletes are out there for themselves. I'd feel better if I had a bad game and won than had a good game and lost, but athletes are not out to try and make IU a better place to live — they're out there on the field as individuals." "When the player becomes that least important individual on the field," Smock added, "the individuals will cooperate as a team, and the team will be successful."

The learning of people has led Trent to analyze his, and his team's past performances. Records of 2-9 and 1-10 have been far from impressive, but Smock feels that the important thing is "how you play."

So what was the problem last year? The lack of talent? The 90 percent? The ifs and ands?

Smock shook his head. "I really don't know what it was. We just didn't get the breaks we needed, and we needed some breaks. They build confidence. I do feel that there were players, including myself, who felt during the season that 'this just can't go on forever — can it?' " "The result," says Smock, "was a lack of confidence, a factor important in success; the success of people."

What will IU football be like this year?

If the team has the self-confidence, Smock feels that a winning season and possibly a bowl game are the goals for the Hoosiers. "We've got a good team . . . I think we'll surprise some people."

What will Trent Smock do this year?

"I want to achieve the best that I can, do as much as I can for the team. I want to be used as much as possible, to be exploited, to help the team."

Helping the team means Smock on the receiving end of a number of passes. He credits four people for his talents as a receiver: Basketball Coach Bob Knight; Bob Baker, end coach under John Pont; and receivers Glenn Scolnik and Charly Byrnes, under whom Smock played as a freshman.

"Coach Knight taught me to discipline myself, and to work hard . . . Bob Baker really helped my catching the ball; he helped me a lot. I played behind Scolnik and Byrnes as a freshman. They taught me the things I know about receiving now," said Smock.

More than a half-century ago, we made a pretty strong statement. But the years have proven us correct.

MCQ limestone has been used in a multitude of projects since Ohio Stadium was constructed. From driveways and patios to expressways and major commercial buildings, the list includes the Ohio Bell Building, the State Office Tower and the new Capitol Parking Garage.

Limestone from MCQ is helping Central Ohio grow. For proof, just look around!

Giving everyone a chance at higher education

Among the first to enroll in Program 65, 68 year-old Leona Hollander joins an elementary German class as a guest of the university.

Sixty-eight years might usher in the rocking chair era for some, but for Leona Hollander, they meant a reserved seat in an elementary German class at Ohio State.

Among the 67 senior citizens who signed up for "Program 65" in Winter 1974, Mrs. Hollander was one of the first to enroll tuition free in classes with available space — compliments of the university. Since then, more than 600 people have taken advantage of the offer.

A retired public school teacher, she recalls the experience as "happy and comfortable," with the younger OSU students welcoming her into their midst.

Program 65 is only part of Ohio State's division of continuing education. Mrs. Hollander's reaction is representative of thousands of people, young and old, who have taken advantage of its programs. Last year alone, 73,014 participated in 938 conferences, short courses and classes.

Robert W. McCormick, assistant vice president for continuing education, says its most exciting aspect is "the notion that people are being updated, prepared to cope with the complexities of society. It gives them a real life and real world education."

Enrollment in the Credit Non-Degree Program has more than doubled since Autumn 1972, largely due to increased evening programs. Students wishing to take college level undergraduate courses for personal, occupational, or professional enrichment, but who are not in a degree program, register in this area. They must meet the same academic standards as other undergraduates, and pay fees according to the number of credit hours attempted.

During the past year, 2,543 people participated in 107 non-credit courses, nearly doubling the enrollment of the previous year. Developed in response to expressed needs, these college-level courses are open to anyone over 18 years old.

Besides non-credit courses, last year the university sponsored conferences and workshops touching almost every major interest area: social work, labor education, education, mental health, exceptional children, engineering, law, health, and business. Topics ranged from "Adolescent Parenthood" to "Power Ultrasonic Processes," with the largest enrollment in the administrative science, agriculture and home economics fields.

The coordinator of women's programs, a position established in 1974, provides counseling and leadership to women beyond the traditional undergraduate age range. She serves as the initial university contact for women seeking goal change and clarification. The division sponsored an intensive three-day Weekend last June for 50 women.

The 10-year-old Urban Extension Program gives individualized assistance in solving community problems and tries to match the needs of Columbus and central Ohio communities with university resources. For example, the Group for Community Learning, composed of faculty and students from the department of psychology, currently is working with Linden residents. Other projects include the training of police and board members of community social services.

The Disaster Services Extension Program works with local communities, helping them prepare for possible natural disasters. During the past year, 13 On-Site-Assistance Programs were held, as well as Public Officials Conferences in Marion and Wayne counties, Westerville, Xenia and Hamilton. A key aim of the program is developing school disaster plans through teacher in-service workshops. Conferences were also held the past year with the State Department of Education, Northwest Ohio County Commissioners, and the Southern Ohio Emergency Medical Service.

The division also develops educational programs for volunteers, directed toward coordinators of social agencies. A course entitled, "How to Succeed with Volunteers," is again offered this fall.

An important message for Ohio State football fans who enjoy good food in pleasant surroundings and who appreciate good value.

Present this advertisement (no need to tear it out of the program) at our Bevis Hall / West Campus location (see map) before or after any 1975 OSU home game. Buy one of our delicious Whopper, Yumbo or Whaler sandwiches; an order of piping hot fries or onion rings, and a beverage; and get a second Whopper, Yumbo or Whaler free (show us your football ticket or stub and we'll add a chilled fresh apple or pear, also free). Coupon may be redeemed only at Bevis Hall and is good on game days only.

You will enjoy these delicacies in the splendor of the first Burger King restaurant ever to be placed within a college building. It is carpeted, panelled, softly lit, and hung with reproductions of old masters and the French impressionists. The good music of the '70s fills the air around you. And, as if that weren't enough, our massive glass windows afford significant views of the stadium, the main campus, and the emerging downtown skyline.

Truly this is a place to visit.

SPECIAL OFFER TO FOOTBALL FANS!!

If Your Sweetheart Reminds You of SUSAN WHEELER
Tell Her So With a Copy of the Exciting, New Novel

YOU DON'T HAVE TO SLAY A DRAGON!

That Romantic Comedy of College Football
by JOHN and MARJORIE STUART

ILLUSTRATED IN COLOR by MARJORIE STUART

FOOTBALL FANS!

If you remember when college meant football games, sorority girls, fraternity pranks and banana splits, or if you wish you did, then you won't want to miss this romantic comedy (based largely on true experiences).

Follow the nostalgic adventures of Susan Wheeler and Andy MacLeod as their romance becomes a legend of the campus. Those were the days when the coach was furious because the back tackled too hard! When the two most beautiful girls in the whole college schemed to LOSE a beauty contest! The Quarterback impressed his sweetheart by giving her a tall stack of thick reference books instead of flowers. A perfectly sane, normal freshman co-ed was scared to death that the upperclassmen would NOT paddle her?

The big scandal was pretty innocent by today's standards. Innocent, but a little confusing. A cute blonde shocked everyone when she ran across campus in her nightie and kissed the football hero. Boy did that make him mad! He swore she'd have to kiss him again — with her clothes on. But we are telling you too much. Buy the book and find out how it all happened.
